॥੩॥
Khai Ravidass naam tero aarti sat naam hai har bhog tuhare. ॥4॥ ॥3॥

Guru Ravidass Ji preaches to the humankind the value of being attached to the true name of God. He has explained the futility of observing only the ritual form of worship of God.

O God! Your name is my Aarti and my ritual bath.

Without the name of God, all displays are false.

Your name is my prayer-mat. Your name is my saffron grinding stone. Your name is the Saffron which I sprinkle.

Your name is the water and Your name is sandalwood which, after grinding, I offer it to You.

Your name is the lamp, your name is also the wick in the lamp as well as the oil in the lamp.

Your name is the light applied to the lamp which illuminates the whole world.

Your name is the thread and the garland of flowers; the eighteen loads of vegetables are impure, Not to be offered to You.

Why should I offer to You those things which You have produced? Your name is the fan which I wave over you.

The whole world pays all attention only to the eighteen Puraanas, the sixty eight places of pilgrimage and the four sources of life.

Ravidass says, Your name is the Aarti. Your true name, sat naam, which I offer to you.
